JOB FOR THE VERY FEW:

GOING ON A VOYAGE INTO SPACE!

Becoming an astronaut is not easy.

At least 4,000 apply every time they advertise for new astronauts in the USA (and they only advertise once every two years!). At the most twenty are actually chosen.

To be an astronaut you must be very fit. It is incredibly hard on the body when being hurled into space at 28,000 kph, you cannot have any physical weaknesses at all. Nor can you be scared of cracking up under pressure.

Other requirements are that you must have done well in maths and physics at school, be a university graduate, or spent many years in the Army or the Air Force before you can qualify.

You have to keep a good grip on your meal bags, or your food will fly around the cabin. Eating upside down must feel really weird!

The hardest thing of all is probably being weightless. After all, you have to be able to do your job 100% even though you are floating around the cabin.

Getting used to the weightlessness is TOUGH, but astronauts practise in simulators and in a giant tank of water. This is because you are also weightless in water, this is a brilliant way of performing Gravity Tests.

You have to hold on to your food and drink!!

Sleeping

In space, you can't just lie down and go to sleep. You have to get into a sleeping bag strapped to the bed and zip it up tight or you will float around as you sleep.

Fitness

There are fitness sessions on board the space shuttle - at least 15 minutes at full throttle every day!

G-Test

You have to pass lots of different Gravity Tests before they allow you into space. You astronaut is going to sleep in a gigantic water tank, the Veto - Weightless Environment Training Facility.

MAYDAY!

FIRE AT THE SPACE PORT!!

Today's the day for the space shuttle launch!

Easy now! Easy!

The crew are going to check out a meteor shower!

Astronauts are used to space flights.

Me too! It's always great.

Start the 6 Force simulator!

I'm looking forward to a quick trip into space!

Before the crew go aboard, the technicians check that everything is working.

Everything OK?

YES!! It makes me dizzy just looking at it!

Let's get her ranted up!

All astronauts have to be 6 tested before they're allowed into space!

The engines are in great shape!

The final instructions before take-off...

If the meter shows 'looks dangerous, neutralize it!'

Roger!

He copy that.

When are you going to start the countdown, Combo?

Right, are you ready, Yema?

I was born ready, Jerry!

I just don't get it! The computer system has gone haywire!

Fire! Fire!

HELP! The fire won't go out!

I'll fix this!

BEEP BEEP
TOOT TOOT
HONK HONK

The sound of the traffic drowns the sound of fire alarm.

Damn! I hate traffic jams!

I'm in a hurry

ALERT! ALERT!

Nearly knocking off time!

I hope they empty the letter box today.

Hi there, me speaking

My chopper's just so cool!

Fortunately there is a direct line between the Space Port, the Police Station and the Fire Station.

To the Space Port!
As fast as a rocket!

We'll be there in 5 minutes!

GO! GO! GO! The space shuttle won't catch fire!

The control room is on fire...

The fire fighters are good, and soon have the fire under control!

Everything is under control!

Yippee! The fire is going out!

He won't be leaving today after all.

No, because the computer system went up in smoke!

The firemen are just so cool!

Give me more water!

The eight Slizers are exciting and challenging to build and they can be rebuilt in different ways. You can even create a mega Slizer by combining four individual Slizers together.

Tan Time Cruiser has just had the wildest adventure deep underwater in Aquazone ... where there was a microcrafter that made it even easier to zap in time and space!

Time Cruisers

"What have we ended up this time, zap?"

Friend or foe?

"Well, if I can help you, just say so ..."

HMM

We do need help, so I will have to trust you. We are the Shogun's men. The Rokan King has stolen Shogun's most precious treasure, the blue sapphire.

Of the men sent to retrieve the blue sapphire, we are the only ones left.

He once possessed the blue sapphire, rules this country. So it is incredibly important for the Shogun to get it back.

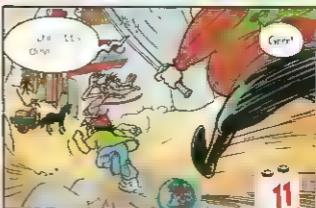

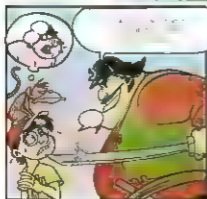

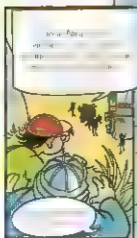

That is the Rokan's Castle!

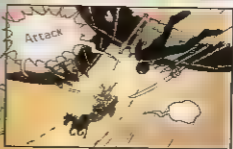

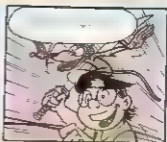

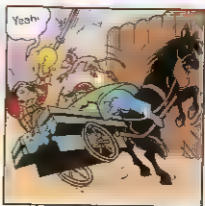

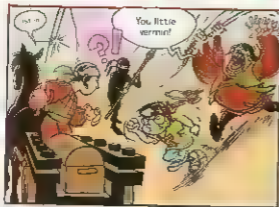

It is impossible to get into it. There are guards everywhere.

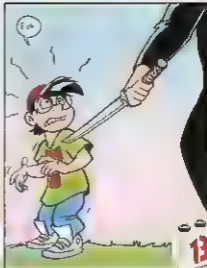

Ugh...

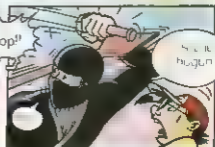

Did you see the chest one of his henchmen was unloading? That is where they are keeping the sapphire!
